

May 1st: An International Struggle Day!

Just as March 8 is not “the day of women”, but a moment of international unity in the struggle for women’s rights and equality, May 1 is not a “celebration of labor”. It is an international day of demonstrations, sometimes strikes of the workers. In some countries, the achievements of the workers’ movement make this legal... which does not rule out government or employers’ repression. In other places, our fellows act in illegality. In these cases, international solidarity is even more necessary!

An international day of demonstrations, sometimes strikes of the workers...

The social, economic and political situations are not identical among the different regions of the world. The inequalities among men and women may be different. The racist or sexist focus more in different sectors of the population. Ecologic disaster may be more or less advanced. Fascism is always a present or latent danger. The colonial fact may be explicit or appear blurred/hidden. Those who produce collective wealth are robbed of most of it, or better yet, a small minority takes hold of most... However, there is a common and essential factor: capitalism.

The social, economic and political situations are not identical among the different regions of the world... However, there is a common and essential factor: capitalism.

Employers and governments speak to us about “crisis”: but it is not ours, nor should be pay for its consequences! However, they attempt this with clear help of their international and national institutions. Corruption is their behavior pattern. It is one of the domination tools over the political clans that exist foreign to the world of the workers. Unemployment, precarization, misery, hunger, prejudice and exploitation to immigrants... all these plagues develop, at the same time that we produce more wealth than ever before. The completely uneven distribution of this wealth is the reason for this situation. This is the rule of the capitalist system and we must face this.

Unemployment, precarization, misery, and hunger develop, at the same time that we produce more wealth than ever before.

This is about building the society we want for tomorrow with the struggles of today, not about speeches. Our union work links the defense of the immediate interests of the workers and the will of a deep social change. It is not limited to the economic vindications. It includes matters such as the right to housing, land, equality among men and women, anti-racism, struggle against homophobia and xenophobia, ecology, and anti-colonialism... and it is rooted in everything that takes place in the work places and neighborhoods.

Our union work links the defense of the immediate interests of the workers and the will of a deep social change.

The International Trade Union Network of Solidarity and Struggles is a tool in service of those who want to develop unionism of struggle, anti-capitalist, self-managed, democratic, ecologist, independent of employers and governments, internationalist, and act against all form of oppression (male chauvinism, racism, homophobia, xenophobia).

Let us all go to the demonstrations, concentrations or strikes this May 1, 2017!
